The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

2,808

"Times, of Course"

That's what all the newsboys say when asked which Barre paper sells the best. There is no doubt about it.

PROFESSIONALISM IS DENIED.

All who are interested in the status of amateur sport will be pleased to know that the Goddard seminary athletic association has taken official recognition of the charge of professionalism made against its foot ball eleven by another Vermont school, and friends of Goddard will be particularly pleased that the school athletic association is able to prove the charge false. Not that they believe that there was professionalism in the team, but that such a clear refutation of the charge was possible. In the resolutions adopted by the school athletic association yesterday the allegation of professionalism was absolutely denied and proofs were advanced to maintain the position. It was shown that not one member of the team is receiving compensation "in any form" for his athletic ability, and furthermore that only two members of the team are receiving help from the 20 scholarships which the school offers to needy students and that these two students have been in the institution two years already. Such a refutation of the charge of professionalism should be satisfactory to all.

In the light of these facts the position taken by the manager of the Edmunds high school foot ball eleven was wrong and he did this school and its team a great injustice in circulating the assertion that professionals were playing on the Goddard team. If the refutation of the charge is satisfactory to him, and it certainly should be, it would seem to be required of him that he retract his statement. The local school manager has not received any specific charges, even when he asked for them, and therefore it must be concluded that the Burlington manager took the position that he did on rumors which, when traced down, would be shown to be entirely without foundation. Rumors, at best, are not safe things on which to base conclusions. We expect that there will be a retraction from the source from which the charge came. Certainly it is the only sportsmanlike thing to be done.

"So you are the man that is going to close the mills. You had better look out or somebody else will get shot in the back, like that cuss Dexter," is a threat alleged to have been made by an Adirondack mill owner to Edward Hatch, Jr., owner of a large forest preserve in the Adirondacks. It is an indication of the temper of the mountaineers in that section and it is a strong argument against the assertion that the millionaire Dexter's death was due to an accident.

The trial which is now on in the Chittenden county court at Burlington proves that the vermillion appendix, although small, can be a decidedly troublesome thing in more ways than one. Thousands of dollars are concerned in this case.

The calling of a special grand jury to investigate the recent disturbance in this city seems to be the best course to pursue, as otherwise the investigation would have gone over for a year.

Here's hoping that this "open door" in Macedonia for the United States will not be slammed in Uncle Sam's face again.

A Town of Bank Cashiers.
The little town of Owenton, Ky., boasts of 121 men born within its limits who have become cashiers of banks. They are scattered through the states of Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio.

The Timber Line.
The impression that British North America is covered with valuable timber is fallacious. Black walnut, red cedar and white oak are not found north of Toronto. A line drawn from the city of Quebec to Sault Ste. Marie will designate the northern limit of beech, elm and birch. The north shore of Lake Superior will mark the northern boundary of sugar hard maple.

Old gold and silver wanted at refiners' prices in exchange for goods at F. E. Burr's.

Children's winter cloaks, the latest, prices reasonable, at Vesale & Knight's.

Gloves, all kinds and prices, at McWhorter's.

We are not catering to any one style, class or condition. We want the trade of every man and boy in this city.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Two dollars a barrel appears to be the ruling price for apples in Addison county.

Alonzo S. Clark of West Glover has a peach apple tree in his yard that measures only 30 inches in circumference at the trunk of the tree and has yielded 18 bushels of good apples this season.

Five deer were seen recently feeding in a Richmond pasture. Last winter was not a hard one for them and indications are that the coming season will be a fruitful one for the hunters, especially in Windsor and Rutland counties.

While the children of John Crowe of Morgan Center, were going through the woods on their way to school they saw a bear and cub near the road. The horse was badly frightened but fortunately no one was injured. The men turned out for a bear hunt but both animals had disappeared.

The well known temperance worker, Thomas N. Doughty of Boston is in Montpelier making preliminary arrangements for giving a series of lectures on practical and applied temperance. He expects to stay a week or ten days in that city when he begins his lectures. His work is not along prohibition lines for he is a believer in license and in the army canteen, having defended McKinley's position on this question in the last presidential campaign. He states that he has some suggestions to make concerning the modification of the Vermont license law.

While standing on the sidewalk in front of Leon Bailey's home on Water street in North Hyde Park at about 8.30 last Tuesday evening Mr. Bailey and G. E. Smith were treated to a fine moonlight view of a cow moose. The animal, which they describe as being the size of a horse, came leisurely through John West's garden and front yard and crossing the sidewalk only 20 feet from them, came toward Main street about four rods, jumped the fence into Mrs. Ann Bullard's front yard and returned in the direction from which she came, leaving tracks which measured five by six inches.

A Fine Distinction.

"Biddleford is a hard drinker, isn't he?"
"No; I should call him an easy drinker."
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

As Usual.

A fellow in old Terre Haute
Went out at election to vote.
When his party went out
He gave a great shout
And came home as full as a gault.
—Muncie Star.

Explained.

"Poor fellow!"
"Yes'm. Everybody thinks I'm looking for work!"

ACROSS THE RIO GRANDE.

Yellow fever is spreading in Mexico, and there have been many deaths.

A syndicate has been formed to spend large sums of money in improving and extending the railways of Mexico.

The investment of American capital in Mexican railroads, mines and plantations is estimated to amount to over $500,000,000.

A Danish colony of 500 families is seeking a location in Mexico. If the colony prospers it will receive large accessions later.

Two hundred houses which were inhabited by yellow fever patients have been burned by the authorities of Tampico City, Mexico, in an effort to eradicate the disease.

The development of Mexico's cotton mills is steadily growing. Mexican cotton goods are already successfully exported to Central and South America in competition with European goods.

The state of Yucatan produces annually 500,000 bales (100,000 tons) of henequen, or sisal, hemp, valued at $12,500,000. And this is possible in a district with labor almost unobtainable. In twenty years Yucatan has exported over 1,000,000 tons of this fiber, worth approximately $125,000,000.

GOWN GOSSIP.

A popular white fabric for waists is a honeycomb design and suggests old fashioned bedspread material.

Ribbons manipulated in a hundred ingenious ways and combined in a rich gamut of tones trim many of the handsomest hats and toques.

Nun's veiling and albatross in white and colors are the best possible materials to use in making the pretty house gown which has superseded the dressy silk waist.

Silk beaver hats are extremely fashionable. Some have a long, thick nap, but the newest have a surface exactly like that of men's silk hats. A few have the pile brushed the wrong way.

After the first of the year the wholesale feather merchants will not be allowed to sell albatross. Milliners may sell those already in stock, but will not be able to procure more, in this country at least.

The newest model for fall and winter shirt waists is a severe, rather scowpy garment, with no fullness in the neck or the shoulders and hardly a vestige of the pouch effect at the belt. The sleeves are small and are gathered into narrow cuffs.—New York Post.

"QUEER" PRISON WORK.

The discovery of a counterfeiting outfit in full blast in the Pennsylvania penitentiary beats extracting sunshine from cucumbers.—Boston Herald.

It has been discovered that there are two mints in Philadelphia. One, however, is a counterfeiting plant in the Eastern penitentiary.—Albany Journal.

A big counterfeiting plant has been discovered within the walls of the Pennsylvania penitentiary. Now, that looks like real enterprise.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The men who established a counterfeiting plant in the penitentiary in Philadelphia selected one of the few places where they were safe from the prying eyes of secret service officials.—Baltimore American.

There is a fine irony in the situation of a counterfeiting plant in a penitentiary. Such quiet and solitude offer the very best opportunity for perfecting, undisturbed, a peaceful business undertaking.—Minneapolis Times.

Why Mosquitoes Bite.

Why do mosquitoes bite human beings? According to Dr. Santos Fernandez of Cuba, it is because the females cannot form their eggs without sucking some warm blood. If they fail to get it they lay no eggs.

An Autumnal Memory.

When the autumn skies are gray and the earth is turning brown
And the leaves in golden showers from the trees are falling down,
Memory comes to us in pinions wings away toward the days
When the sun of youth was shedding on our head its golden rays.
We can see the shocks of fodder standing just as when we left,
See the chimney smoke acorns in their claws so sharp and deft,
Hear the hickory nuts come falling from the grand old shellbark trees
When their limbs were softly shaken by the fingers of the breeze.

We can hear the turkeys gobbling in the barnyard 'cross the lane,
Hear the humming of the thrashers pounding out the golden grain,
See the yellow old cow pumpkins lying thick upon the ground,
With the stubble of the cornstalks sharply hedging them around,
But the very sweetest music that came to our boyish ears,
Music that has clung unto us through the intervening years,
Was the music that was started by the antics of the breeze—
Hickory nuts a-rattling downward from the shaggy shellbark trees.

How we wild shock headed youngsters, hardy products of the farms,
Hastened to the nearby woodland, pillow-slips hung on our arms,
Lending echoes with our laughter, answering the bobwhite's call,
When the frost was on the fences and the nuts began to fall!
Busy were our little fingers as we filled the muslin sips,
Rude at times the exclamations that would ripple from our lips
As we'd spy the bold intruders, saucy, well dressed boys from town
Out among the shellbark hickories when the nuts were falling down.

Looking back o'er life so riddled with its pleasures and its pains,
With its seasons glad with sunshine and its days of chilling rains,
Like an ever sparkling jewel in the memory crown ablaze
Comes the joyous recollection of those earnest boyhood days;
Comes a picture of the farmhouse, of the crooked old rail fence,
Of the saucy squirrels barking in the wood so deep and dense,
Of the leaves so softly rustling when disturbed by passing breeze,
And the hickory nuts a-falling from the grand old shellbark trees.
—James Barton Adams in Denver Post.
